While high-risk tactical operations may be exciting and dangerous, the behind-the-scenes administration of such units is often the unsung mechanism that keeps those wheels turning. Administration of Tactical Teams is geared towards agencies that want to start a tactical unit from scratch, or established teams that are looking to invigorate themselves with fresh ideas and new perspectives. Learn the principles of what's needed to get off the ground including:

- Gathering Data
- Alternatives to Tactical Units
- Gaining (and keeping) community and agency support
- Funding & Grants
- State/Federal Resources
- Mitigating Liability
- Managing Politics
- Forming Partnerships
- Memorandums of Understanding
- Policy Development
- Member Selection
- Equipment Procurement
- Marketing
- And more....

This course is focused mainly on the development of multi-agency tactical units, but the ideas discussed may be used to benefit any form of special unit. It may also serve useful for those agency members looking to move into leadership or administrative roles within their unit. Upon completion, attendees will receive a certificate for 16-hours of continuing education.
